I'm Ready, Says Clara

PORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 19.—Clara Smith Hamon, charged with the murder of Jake Hamon, said today she was ready for trial and that she would not ask for a postponement of the case against her. She said she was ready to go to the state penitentiary and serve her term.

ARDMORE, Okla., Feb. 19.—The trial of Clara Smith Hamon, charged with the murder of Jake Hamon, Oklahoma "oil king" and republican national committeeman, is set for March 10 and it will not be postponed, it was officially announced today. Moves made by the prosecution and defense indicate that both sides are lining up for a bitter fight and sensational trial.

The town is filling up with detectives said to be in the employ of the state. Sensational reports are current that warrants will be issued for the persons in Ardmore, Oklahoma City, Lawton and Bartlesville, Texas, who, it is claimed, are enemies of the accused woman have attempted to testify against her. At the same time, it was reported that the attorney of the accused woman, who occupied a room in the hotel where Hamon was shot on the day of the tragedy, has been just above the suite in which Hamon and the accused woman lived and, according to the informant of the defense, he heard enough of the quarrel which preceded the shooting to make him a valuable witness.

The case against the girl as it touches the main line of prosecution would be built chiefly on circumstantial evidence, the state seeking to destroy her story that she shot Hamon accidentally while in a drunken fury, he made a move to hit her with a chair.

SEEK SALESMAN FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Two Women, Both Dead,
Involved in Affairs
of George Kruse

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 19.—That George Kruse, charged with the murder of his wife, had possible connection with the mysterious death of Kathleen Foley, 13-year-old Topeka girl who died here late Friday night and who claimed she had been strangled and forced to take poison, was the theory being investigated by police today.

It was said that the Foley girl had had relations with Kruse, a Wichita oil salesman.

Miss Foley had been summoned to Wichita Friday to appear as a witness in the trial of Kruse on the charge of having murdered his wife, and it is reported Kruse made an effort to have her leave the state before the trial came up.

About midnight Friday she appeared at her own home dressed in her night clothes and related a story of having been strangled and forced to take poison. She died in convulsions shortly after.

Kruse, it is claimed, went away with the Foley girl, representing himself as an unmarried man, and later promising to obtain a divorce from his wife, with whom murder is now charged.

It is charged his wife was strangled to death while sleeping.

William S. Hart in Big Typical Photoplay

Are you one of those who believe in yourself? Do you think you could defy the opinion and the unfavorable prophecies of the pessimists and scoffers if you had set your heart on accomplishing a big task? Or have you arrived at a successful point in your life because you felt sure of yourself and went ahead? If you are one of these people of faith you will want to see William S. Hart in "The Desert Man." It will prove to be an inspiration to you. It will show you that the courage of one's convictions can make dreams come true. Mr. Hart converts the fallen city of "Broken Hopes" into the city of "Golden Hopes" by optimism, daring and the sure power of faith. Mr. Hart gives a masterful portrayal of one who can be all hardness and tenderness. Out of the desert from nowhere he stumbles into deadly adventures and over the threshold of a woman's love. An exquisite love story of shame and forgiveness wherein dark-eyed Margery Wilson portrays the heroine, runs like a silver thread through the entire. In the cast supporting Mr. Hart are Buster Irving, Henry Belmar, Milton Ross, Jack Livingston, Walt Whitman, and Josephine Headley. Remember, this attraction is showing at the LYRIC theater Monday and Tuesday.—Advt.
